

Transactional Lawyer:
CIBC Legal
Wholesale Banking, Business Lending & Corporate Development Group

CIBC is a leading North American financial institution serving approximately 11 million individual and institutional clients in Canada and around the world. CIBC's wholesale banking business provides a wide range of credit, capital markets, investment banking, merchant banking and research products to CIBC's institutional clients in Canada and in key markets around the world.

With about 50 lawyers working from offices in Toronto, Montreal, New York, London and Singapore, CIBC Legal manages legal outcomes by providing a full range of legal support and transactional support services to CIBC's businesses worldwide. The Wholesale Banking, Business Lending and Corporate Development Group in Toronto will consist of five lawyers who together support CIBC's investment banking, business lending, debt capital markets, merchant banking, treasury, risk management and institutional securities trading businesses, as well as CIBC's Corporate Development group.

CIBC Legal is seeking a lending lawyer to join the Wholesale Banking, Business Lending and Corporate Development Group in Toronto. Responsibilities will include:

- providing legal support to CIBC's lending businesses, including negotiating credit agreements, security agreements and ancillary documents;
- reviewing changes to legislation and recommending changes to lending practices, policies and documentation; and
- managing external counsel.

Successful candidates will have a minimum of five years of credit law experience gained at a top tier law firm or a leading financial institution. Although not required, the ability to work in French and a call to the Québec bar would definitely be an asset. If you are a confident and decisive lawyer with excellent legal and business judgment, please forward your resume in confidence to:
